Pribilof Natives to Receive Relief From Gov'm't

In a desperate race to provide food for the 600 Natives of the Pribilof islands who are rapidly approaching the end of their supplies at a moment when an early winter threatens to isolate them from all aid, the United States naval radio repair steamship Saturn will speed from Seattle for Bering Sea next Thursday with 800 tons of provisions, says the Seattle Times.

On her ability to fight her way to the island and land the supplies depends the last hope of the Natives of being saved from months of near starvation on a meager seal meat diet. The relief expedition ranks as one of the most daring staged in northern waters for years. If the Saturn fails, no other relief can be sent to the Natives until next June.

The Saturn arrived back at the Naval Station, Puget Sound, ten days ago from a splendid but futile effort to land supplies on the islands. For two months she fought a succession of storms in Pribilof waters, making daring efforts to land the precious food, but succeeded only in landing mail and a cow and calf. Then, as she was running short of fuel, she had to race back to Puget Sound. On the way back she stored her Pribilof provisions, totaling 800 tons, at Unalaska. But she dare not take a chance of being unable to reload that shipment on her coming race into Bering Sea and so she will go out with a duplicate order in her cargo holds. Beside the food shipments, she has 500 tons of sacked coal for the island stations.

To prepare for her dash to the Pribilofs, the Saturn, Lieut. Com. R. J. Carstarphen, U. S. N., commanding, shifted from the Naval Station to Pier 10 yesterday afternoon. With the commanding officer are Lieut. G. Dalghren, U. S. N., as executive officer; Lieut. George Avon, U. S. N., as chief engineer; Lieut. L. Hamnerstrom, U. S. N., as navigating officer; Lieut. Thomas Haus, U. S. N., as first assistant engineer; Dr. N. W. Sheley, U. S. N., as medical officer; Paymaster C. Williams, U. S. N., and Assistant Paymaster James Yoes, U. S. N.

The Saturn is to make the islands at any cost even though she has to battle her way through the ice. Winter is closing down early in Bering Sea this year. The Pribilofs lie nearly 500 miles beyond Unimak Pass and by the time the naval ship sights the islands, all other vessels will have fled for the year from Bering Sea. In all that great expanse of stormy waters, strewn with dangerous icefields, the naval vessel will float alone, fighting her battle single-handed, beyond all hope of assistance in the event of disaster. No other relief ship has ever been sent into Bering Sea to isolate in the season.

Waterfront men will follow the ship with their prayers but at the same time they are pointing out that if the Government would equip the Alaska Bureau of Fisheries with an efficient steamship that could carry supplies to the Pribilof Natives in the early summer, the need for such desperate ventures at the end of the season would be eliminated. As it is, according to waterfront men and Alaskans, the Bureau of Fisheries is left helpless, and has to call on the Navy at the last moment. Conditions in Bering Sea have been more severe since July 1 than in any other summer and fall period in the last 20 years, according to the Bering Sea Natives. The supply of food on the Pribilofs has been running lower and lower ever since the middle of summer, while storm after storm has shut them off from assistance. Besides the 600 Natives, the islands have a white population of 14 persons, who face the same condition as the tribesmen.

The Saturn will have 12 passengers for the islands, the list included Dr. Eckhardt, physician for the Bureau of Fisheries, wife and child; Superintendent Allen of the bureau, and wife, and Storekeeper Scudder, also of the bureau, and wife.

While the season now closing has been a severe one for whites and Natives, it was marked by the advent of the greatest seal herd ever seen on the islands since the Government took control of the seal industry. The census of the herd this year showed a total of 1,500,000 seals on the islands, more than double the number of any preceding census taken by the Government officers. The number of seals killed this year totals 35,000. The great increase in the herd is attributed to the policies formulated and placed in effect by Dr. Hanna, scientist for the Bureau of Fisheries, who has spent years in the Pribilofs protecting the seals from indiscriminate killing. The skins of the seals killed this year are still on the island. If possible, the Saturn will bring them back with her.

Live Sables

Two live sables from the Arctic woods of Siberia—the first living specimens of the precious species ever brought across the Pacific—are aboard the auxiliary-powered schooner Kamchatka of the Hibbard-Swenson Company of Seattle, which is now plowing her way toward Cape Flattery, homeward bound after trading all summer along the shores of Kamchatka and the Siberian Arctic, says the Seattle Times.

It is said that less than 100 persons in the United States have ever gazed on live sable, though the fur of the animal is worn by tens of thousands in this country. The two which the Kamchatka is bringing from Siberia will probably be seen at the second of the Hibbard-Swenson Company's big fur sales.

Webster defines the sable as "a carnivorous mammal (mustela zibellina) belonging to the same genus as the martens." Fur experts say it is the highest member of the cat family. Its soft and valuable fur is the product of environment, including climatic conditions. The Siberian sable, described as the most valuable of all sables, dwells in the most northerly forests of Asia, being a semi-Arctic denizen. It lives in the heavy timber and brush where the light is dim the greater part of the year. The less the light, the darker the skin, which explains why the sable killed in November, December and January always have the dark skins so highly prized by the fair sex.

There are no genuine sables on this continent, according to fur experts. The nearest approach is the Alaska marten which sometimes is referred to as a sable, but it is said to be only a related species.

Olaf Swenson of the Hibbard-Swenson Company, headed the Kamchatka's trading expedition, which included the rounds of the company's stations and posts in Kamchatka and the Siberian Arctic. The vessel has a valuable car-

5000 lbs. Spuds Produced From 112 lbs. Seeds

A few days ago our friend, W. E. Parrott called on the Sentinel to pay his yearly subscription to the paper. After getting his receipt Mr. Parrott said: "I was reading in your last week's paper a short article reproduced from a Fairbanks paper telling of the wonderful agriculture possibilities of the Tanana valley. I do not question the big claims made for that section, but what I want to say is that the agricultural possibilities of the Wrangell district are far greater than even the people right here at home realize. Let me give you a concrete example of what this soil will do. A few months ago I planted 112 pounds of seed spuds, and when I harvested the crop I had over 5000 pounds of spuds. I myself would hardly have believed the yield to have been that much if I had not been the one who weighed the seed and then later weighed the spuds that were produced therefrom. And spuds are not the only successful crop that I have grown on my ranch on Sergei island this year. I doubt if there is any finer rhubarb grown anywhere in the world than I have produced. I grow a variety of truck on my farm and I have found that all crops that I have tried have done well, including rutabagas, beets, horseradish, cauliflower, cabbage, strawberries, gooseberries, currants, etc. I even had some tobacco plants and found that they also did well."

Fliers Reach New York

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 20—Touching ground at the Mineola Aviation Field at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, the four United States Army airplanes, comprising the Alaskan Flying Squadron, today completed their record-breaking 9,000 mile flight from New York to Nome, Alaska, and return. The last leg of the long trip was from Erie, N. Y.

Their homecoming was something in the annals of aviation. A great fleet of aircraft—forty or more planes and several dirigibles—flew out to meet the daring pathfinders as they sailed alone over the Hudson and escorted them to their landing, while guns boomed and millions of people craned their necks for the first glimpse of the great aerial armada.

Officials of the War Department, Aero Club of America and other military and civil organizations met the expedition at the landing field and showered Capt. St. Clair Streett, commander of the squadron, and his pilots with congratulations.

go of Siberian furs, ivory, whalebone, walrus hides, bear skins and the like, the bear skins including a number of polars and grizzlies. The Kamchatka sailed from Seattle the first week in May. Beside the furs on the vessel the Hibbard-Swenson Co. is bringing large shipments of the Siberian product by steamship from Vladivostok.

LOCAL NEWS

W. W. Lopp and C. H. Kimball arrived from Seattle on the Spokane Friday.

W. S. Binkley of the Wrangell Dairy this week received 200 bales of hay from the Yakima valley. He states that next year he will use home grown hay, getting his supply from the Stikine flats.

William Patterson, local agent for the Canadian Pacific has received a cablegram from R. F. Richardson, the general agent, giving the following sailing dates for the Princess Mary south-bound from Wrangell: November 5, 18; December 2, 16, 30.

Captain Walter Waters brought in a number of black bear skins this week from the West Coast of Prince of Wales island. This is the second consignment of black bear skins that Captain Waters has brought in from the West Coast this month.

Miss Helen May Jones arrived from Juneau on the Jefferson Monday night. Miss Jones is a teacher in the Government school at Bayview. She recently went to Juneau as an escort for Miss Beverly Hatch, another Bayview teacher who was sent to the Government hospital at Juneau for an operation. Miss Jones will leave Wrangell for Bayview on the Princess Pat.

The October term of court at Ketchikan was postponed and will not convene until November 8, at 10 a. m. The following grand jurors have been drawn from Wrangell: William H. Lewis, Alex Miller, Cliff McCay, F. M. Goodrich, Earl West, O. Gunderson, Carl Arola. The following petit jurors will be summoned from Wrangell: Bert McCay, Oscar Case, John Anderson, M. L. Burke, G. Rogers, Donald Sinclair.

Mayor J. G. Grant is in receipt of a letter from A. H. Range, the promoter of the Wrangell crab cannery project, in which he states that although there has been some unavoidable delay, and it has required much more time to get started than was expected he feels sure that when the company does get started it will be on a sounder basis as a result of the delay. Mr. Range closes his letter by saying that all equipment has been purchased and is ready for shipment.

NOTICE

The land adjoining the city limits and extending to the cemetery east of the Government road has been located as a fur farm. No trespassing on said farm.

Notice

The Civic Improvement Club will hold its regular monthly meeting the first Friday in November instead of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Wyatt left on the Princess Mary this week for Morton, Wash.

Louis Wigg and Thomas Woodhouse were passengers to Prince Rupert on the Princess Mary.

Preliminary Report on Breakwater for Wrangell Will Be Made December 1

Delegate Grigsby this week received a cablegram in which Col. Edward H. Shultz of the War Department stated that the preliminary report on the breakwater proposition for Wrangell harbor would probably be submitted about December 1.

Hunters Witness Bull Moose Battle

W. D. Burden, C. V. Whitney and L. Lorter, big game hunters from New York, while hunting Moose on the peninsula last week, witnessed something seldom seen by hunters—two bull Moose battling for mastery of the herd, says the Cordova Alaskan.

One band of more than one hundred Moose was sighted, and a short way off a band of thirty, led by a bull Moose having a 70-inch spread of antlers approached. The hunters and guides noticed the bulls separate from their herds and enter the arena.

After the usual preliminaries of snorts and threats they approached to within about twenty feet and charged with antlers lowered and came together with terrific impact.

The leader of the lesser herd was thrown back upon his haunches with a deep gash in his forehead. His antagonist with true gallantry stood aloof and did not charge again. As the old bull sat there the herd sniffed around him disdainfully and transferred their adulation to the sturdy young champion. The old bull arose, accompanied by a lone cow and staggered away. A bullet ended his career and the hunters are taking the horns back to the States.

During the combat the hunters and guides stood in full view, but the animals seemed oblivious to all save the mastery of the glen.

Grigsby Arrives

Hon. George B. Grigsby arrived in Wrangell last night on the last lap of his campaign. He will speak in the Redmen's hall tonight at 8 o'clock. Mr. Grigsby will go from here to Ketchikan where he will close his campaign on Monday night.

America's Gift to France

Given at the Last Assembly by Andrew Engstrom

Late in 1917 it was announced in the press that a committee of representative American citizens had dedicated themselves to the plan of raising by public subscription sufficient funds to erect on the site of the first battle of the Marne a colossal statue in commemoration of the victory of the French forces there in 1914.

The distinguished American sculptor, Frederick MacMonnies, is now working on sketches for a statue of a size worthy of the event it is to commemorate. When completed, it will constitute the embodiment of the feeling which all Americans have for France.

The offer of this memorial to the French Government was received, with the highest official sanction of the French Republic, and the tender has been accepted with many expressions of gratitude.

It is estimated that $250,000 will be required to design and construct this statue, to transport it to France and to erect it at Meaux, where the battle was fought.

In order that the statue may be in truth "America's Gift to France," the funds must come from all parts of the country, from people in every walk of life. A special appeal was made to the twenty million school children. The schools of Alaska have responded generously. Wrangell's contribution was seven dollars and twenty-three cents.

News Notes From All Over The Northland

John Noon, representative of Alaska in the cities of the east, is said to be hitting the high places. He is being extensively entertained and is speaking before many business organizations on the needs of Alaska.

A new deckhouse to cost in the neighborhood of $225,000, is to be built on the liner Victoria. The house will supersede the present one to provide better accommodations for passengers on the Seattle-to-Nome run.

When the official count of the Natives of the Copper River district was taken in 1885 there were 366. At the census taken this year there were 332. This disproves the theory that has been advanced that the people were rapidly dying off.

F. E. Whipple, who conducts a fox ranch west of Unga, left for the States on one of the last boats.

J. E. Gary, an experienced fox farmer, has bought the White-horse Silver Black Fox Company and will operate it.

A Foxy Fox

A valuable black fox jumped overboard from the deck of the steamer Alaska, swam ashore and escaped.

The fox was the property of G. L. Morrison of Hot Spings, and was being shipped to Prince Edward Island. There were 27 crates containing 54 foxes, on the steamer, all of which were being shipped to Prince Edward Island. Captain Davis and Bob Annesley took a small boat to Cassiar, where the fox escaped, and scoured the country for two days with a good dog, but could find no trace.—Capital.

School Notes

The new Victrola which was purchased with the entertainment funds has arrived. It was ordered by Mr. Patterson who let the school have it at cost. We take this opportunity to express our gratitude to Mr. Patterson. We also wish thank Mrs. Watson for presenting the school with four valuable Victrola records.

The school has received several free industrial exhibits from prominent manufacturing companies.

The last assembly was conducted by Andrew Engstrom and Fred Gunderson. Mrs. M. O. Johnson and Mrs. W. W. McLaughlin sang. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. O. Gunderson, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Bidwell.

Friday at 1:15 p.m. there will be a program at 1:15 to commemorate Roosevelt's birthday. Rev. H. P. Corser and F. E. Bronson will speak and Mrs. John T. Towers will sing.

There will be a big dance Saturday night at the Redmen's hall given by the high school basketball team. The proceeds will be used to buy basketball suits.

The Eighth grade organized their class last week. Vernon Myers was chosen president; Ruth Tucker, secretary; Helen Fletcher, treasurer; and Harold Shangle yell leader. Henry Ronning.

St. Philip's Guild will hold its annual Christmas sale at the gymnasium Saturday afternoon and evening, beginning at two o'clock. There will be a good display of Oriental goods, fancy goods, pictures and home made candy. Tea, coffee and cake will be served by a bevy of charming young ladies. The Junior girls of the church school will have charge of the candy booth. A fish pond will provide an attraction for the children. A peep into the future may be obtained in the evening for a moderate sum. The proceeds of the sale will be used to swell the Guild-room building fund.

Hon. Dan Sutherland Speaks in Wrangell

Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a fair sized, representative audience present at the Redmen's hall Friday night to hear Senator Dan Sutherland, the Republican candidate for Delegate to Congress.

Mr. Sutherland was introduced by Hon. P. C. McCormack, who acted as chairman of the meeting. Applause greeted the speaker as he arose to begin his address. Mr. Sutherland briefly reviewed his early life, and expressed his loyalty and love for Alaska which has been his home for more than twenty years.

Bonus on Gold

The first political question taken up by Mr. Sutherland was that of a bonus on gold. He said that gold was the only commodity that had not increased in value in the past five years, although the cost of producing gold has been considerably increased. He said that last year the United States used in the manufacture of gold articles twenty-two million dollars' worth of gold in excess of what it produced, and that it was not improbable that some gold coin was being used for manufacturing purposes. He said that some of the leading economists are in favor of a gold bonus to stimulate the gold mining industry, and that he believed a bill for that purpose should have the support of Alaska's delegate to Congress.

Pulp Industry Coming to Front

Mr. Sutherland predicted that the pulp industry would soon become one of great commercial importance to Alaska. He said that in addition to the spruce Alaska has great stretches of cottonwood, a timber which is of little value for general purposes, but the very best for producing pulp. Much of the most desirable timber for pulp, he stated, is on the National Forest reserves, and he believed that reasonable concessions should be made by the Government in order that capital might be induced to invest freely and the paper mills be put in operation.

Oil Industry Needs Developing

Mr. Sutherland declared that he was interested in the development of the oil lands of the Territory. He stated that Great Britain and France are expending vast sums of money in developing their oil resources and he believed that this Government should do the same thing. He referred to the expenditure of one million dollars by the Navy Department in the development of the coal fields in the Chichaloon for naval purposes. He declared that oil is a better fuel than coal for naval purposes, and that it would have been better had that money been spent in the development of Alaskan oil fields.

Election of Officials

Mr. Sutherland declared that he stood for the election of the various Government officials in Alaska. He mentioned the Governor, Territorial Mine Inspector, and Commissioner of Education. He said he believed the United States Commissioners should be classified and paid a living salary. He also thought that their jurisdiction should be increased. At present a United States Commissioner has no jurisdiction in a case where more than one thousand dollars is involved. He thought that they should be given additional authority so that they would have jurisdiction in cases involving several thousand dollars. He stated that the residents of remote sections of Alaska would be saved a great deal of trouble, time and money, if U. S. Commissioners had more authority in civil cases, thereby making it possible for much of the litigation of the Territory to be settled in the vicinity where it arises, instead of requiring great expense in travelling, as is often the case.

Fisheries Commission Proposed

Mr. Sutherland talked at some length on the fisheries problems. Space will not permit a full report of his discussion of this subject. In the end he said that he believed the territorial legislature should be given control of Alaska fisheries, but he felt sure that it would be impossible to get a bill through Congress giving that authority, as the Bureau of Fisheries is opposed to giving up its power. Legislation affecting our fisheries, the speaker believed, must come through cooperation with the Bureau of Fisheries. He advocated the creation of a board with arbitrary powers to act, to control the fishing industry, and did not believe the Bureau of Fisheries would be opposed to such a board. According to his proposed plan half of the board would be cannery and trap men and the other half would be independent fishermen with no connection whatever with canneries or traps. The most competent scientist available should be appointed chairman, the appointment to be made with the assistance of the Bureau of Fisheries. He said this proposed board should be made responsible to the Territorial legislature if possible, or as the next best alternative, to the Bureau of Fisheries or Congress itself.

Law Enforcement

Mr. Sutherland criticized the lax enforcement of laws in Southeastern Alaska. He said that for fish pirating there seemed to be a sliding scale and that the more fish a pirate stole the less was the rate of his fine. He cited instances showing where a man with one trap fishing on Sunday had paid a fine of $200, a man with five traps fishing on Sunday paid a fine of $700, while another pirate who was more energetic than the rest in violating the law and had eleven traps fishing on Sunday was compromised with by being required to pay a fine of only one thousand dollars.

Referring to lack of enforcement of the liquor law Mr. Sutherland made the statement that there are deputy marshals in the first division who make a practice of selling whiskey. He said, "Up in Juneau an honest bootlegger has a hard time of it in competition with deputy marshals. I admit that once in awhile some bootlegger is caught but the deputy marshals are hunting chipmunks when the woods are full of bears."

Mr. Sutherland declared that recently a deputy marshal got into a disagreement with one of his partners in the bootlegging business. The partner then turned state's evidence and placed the facts before the district attorney. The deputy marshal was then dismissed.

Mr. Sutherland more than once declared that it was indisputable that laxity of law enforcement breeds contempt for the law. He declared that Alaska had received much unfavorable advertising as a result of liquor laws not being enforced. He said that Alaska is not making a very favorable impression on the tourist who comes north on a sightseeing trip and finds drunkenness prevalent at Ketchikan and other ports, and observes that some of the passengers go on a drunken debauch from Ketchikan north to Juneau where another wholesale supply of booze is obtained.

In his closing remarks Mr. Sutherland said that from his boyhood he had been a great admirer of Theodore Roosevelt and was still heartily in accord with the principles advocated by him.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Sutherland was warmly applauded.

News Notes

From All Over

The Northland

The Fairbanks Daily News-Miner has raised its subscription price to $24 a year.

Dr. W. H. Chase of Cordova, recently returned from a visit to his parents in New York.

Prof. Alan Bateman, who for the past several months has been in the western section of Alaska making an examination of coal, oil, and copper prospects, has resumed his seat in geology at Yale.

Thomas S. Scott, for the past six years cashier in the First Bank of Cordova, has taken the vice-presidency of the Bank of Alaska, succeeding H. L. Reed, who recently left for Seattle.

Lester D. Henderson, Territorial superintendent of schools, who recently returned from a trip to Nome, reports that there are grazing lands in the north for fifty million reindeer, and that the time is not far off when there will be that many animals, as the herds double every three years.

According to advices recently received in Seward from Seattle, Captain Fred Warner, former master of the steamship Victoria, is negotiating for a boat to go on the Seward-Kodiak run. Captain Warner believes the route offers good opportunity to make money on the investment.

The Guggenheims expect to take out five million dollars next year with their dredge on Hunker creek. Lovett Gulch, turned down during the great stampede, is now covered with prospectors. The Fortymile Dredging and Power company has spent two million dollars in development work the past two years.

Some of the trap owners of Southeastern Alaska are pulling trap piles this year in order to save them from the inroads of marine organisms, whose chief occupation in life appears to be to destroy as much wood as possible. The teredo and pile worms cannot stand the air or freezing temperature and it is estimated that the monetary saving will be from $30 to $50 per pile.

Surveys have been completed for the establishment of a number of radio stations on the Alaskan coast, as an aid to shipping. It is reported the power of the Cordova station will be doubled.

The Cordova Daily Times claims to have $500 on deposit in the office to wager that W. G. Harding will be our next president. It is safe to say the money does not belong to Brother Steele, as no editor in Alaska ever saw that much money at one time.

Marking a new epoch in Northern mining development and representing the largest shipment ever sent out of the Kuskokwim river district—between Seward Peninsula and the Aleutian islands—a consignment of $150,000 in gold dust arrived in Seattle when the steamer Katherine C docked in port from the North. The gold dust is being shipped into the States by placer miners along the Kuskokwim river. Recent advices from that section indicate a big increase in population and an optimistic boom spirit. The big gold dust shipment just received represents the pioneering of placer miners panning the tributary streams of the Kuskokwim.

KODIAK, Alaska—The greatest movement just now in Kodiak is securing town lots. They are being snapped up by location and also by purchase. A real estate boom appears to have struck the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Drager have rented and moved into Dr. Bulkley's residence, Mrs. Bulkley and children having left on the last Watson for a winter's visit to the States.

The Kodiak Fisheries company cannery closed the latter part of September after the most successful season since beginning operations.

A cow that was being shipped to the lower Yukon river country gave birth to twins while housed in one of the White Pass company's warehouses recently.

Delegate to Congress

If you really want something done for Alaska send a man to Congress who has the ability to get what he goes after

Mr. Sutherland has lived in Alaska over twenty years and is well known in all sections, having served for eight years in the Alaska Legislature as Senator from the Fourth division

It is now assured that the result of the November election will be a victory for the Republican party, and it is desirable that the Delegate from Alaska should be of the party in power

Preparing for one hundred and twenty million meals with Karo Maple for 1921

Last year American housewives bought over five million cans of Karo Maple. Delicious flavor, moderate price and wise buying

Do you know that the makers of Karo Maple are the world's largest users of the purest and best flavored maple sugar?

That over a thousand tons of maple sugar from the finest maple groves in Vermont and Canada are used each year to make Karo Maple?

Karo Maple is pure and wholesome—its flavor is not an imitation.

Yet the price is so moderate that you can afford to serve it at every meal.

Try it just once, on some nice hot waffles, or brown pancakes. Or as a spread for bread or crisp toast.

If Karo Maple isn't the most satisfying syrup you ever tasted, at the most satisfying price you ever paid for a similar syrup, return the balance of the can and the grocer will refund your money.

PUBLIC SPEAKING TO-NIGHT

HON. GEO. B. GRIGSBY

Delegate to Congress from Alaska, will address the citizens of Wrangell at the Redmen's Hall, Tonight, 8 o'clock.

The people of Wrangell will remember that when John Rustgard delivered his speech here on August 26 he attacked Delegate George Grigsby charging him with having betrayed his trust by his failure to do anything against the passage of the Merchant Marine Bill. A pamphlet has since been circulated which purports to be a reproduction of Mr. Rustgard's speech here. The pamphlet is entitled "The Capitulation of George Grigsby to the Seattle Steamship Trust." Inasmuch as the people of Wrangell and vicinity are vitally interested in steamship transportation Delegate Grigsby will tonight discuss this subject along with others, and incidentally introduce documentary evidence that will positively refute the slanderous charges that he failed to lift his voice against the passage of the Merchant Marine Bill.

EVERYBODY INVITED

Anyone who happens to be in the vicinity of the Bar at night or before daybreak in the morning hears the howling of a pack of wolves that are on the north end of Douglas Island. That the wolves have, in the couple of years that they have been on the island, done a lot of damage is evidenced by the fact that, as far as we know, not one deer has been killed on this side of the island this season, nor has any sign been seen where many were killed each year heretofore.

A wolf is worth about $30.00 dead and nothing alive, and hunters and trappers who wish to make some money and at the same time do a lot of good should hunt or trap wolves on the island.

Salvation Army Native Congress

Adjutant W. J. Carruthers returned Tuesday night from Metlakatla where he attended the Native Congress of the Salvation Army which was in session October 20-24.

The Congress was conducted by the new divisional commander, Staff Captain Jaynes of Ketchikan, assisted by Adjutant Carruthers.

Upon their arrival at Metlakatla the delegates were met at the wharf by the local Salvation Army corps, the mayor and town council and escorted to Father Duncan's Church where the mayor gave an address of welcome.

Sessions of the council were held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Each evening a public meeting was held in the M. L. S. hall. On Sunday morning and afternoon services were conducted in Father Duncan's Church. At the Sunday morning service Staff Captain Jaynes, the new divisional commander, was officially welcomed to the Alaska field.

On Sunday afternoon there was a largely attended meeting of the Congress at which Adjutant Carruthers delivered his farewell address.

At the close of the conference it was announced that there had been more than 100 conversions during the four days the congress had been in session.

The delegates took their departure from Metlakatla on Monday. On Monday afternoon they called at Saxman and held a meeting there.

Monday evening the returning delegates invaded Ketchikan. A big parade took place immediately headed by the Kake band and followed by almost 100 Native Salvationists in uniform. An open air service was held on the street, and later in the evening another service was conducted in the Presbyterian hall. Nineteen conversions were reported as a result of the evening spent in Ketchikan.

The Kake delegates brought Adjutant Carruthers home and last night held a rousing meeting in the local Salvation Army hall which was in the nature of a final farewell to Adjutant and Mrs. Carruthers, the retiring district officers.

The Kake delegates left on the launch Three Brothers shortly after midnight, the Kake band playing aboard the boat as long as it was in hearing distance of the town.

On Sunday night the local Salvationists will hold a meeting which will be in the nature of a farewell to Adjutant and Mrs. Carruthers.

Throughout Southeastern Alaska there is general regret over the departure of the Carruthers, but at no place is this regret more keenly felt than at Wrangell which has been their home for the past two years. The results of their good works will be felt long after their departure.
